The Roads Compromise

Editorial — BY BRUCE BIOSSAT The nation's need for more and better highways transcends politics, and it is encouraging to note that at last Congress seems prepared to accept the fact.

In consultation with President IKE FELL IN TRAP Eisenhower, top congressional Republicans have decided to go along with a Democratic proposal for financing a long-range road program. How to get the money has tack. Ike, thanks to outside presbeen the stumbling block.

Republicans have wanted to finance new roads by issuance of bonds. Democrats favor a pay-as-you-go system which would mean added taxes.

Television

Since the Democrats control both houses of Congress, the GOP knows prospects for bond financing are slim. The same plan was beaten last year. In approving the Democratic arrangement the Republicans are merely recognizing the

Yet the recognition is important. The compromise on highways reflects the essence of the art of governing. In this case, party differences are not being exactly reconciled. It is perhaps more accurate to say that party interests may be put in balance. In other words, a highway program thus put together may contain something for both Republicans and Democrats. Inasmuch as the GOP holds the White House, it will naturally claim credit for any useful legislation approved under its President. No one can possibly say at this time which party's claims will be given greater credibility by the American voters. Perhaps both will win partial rewards in the shape of divided votes at the next general election. In the long run possibly it does-n't matter how the credit is distributed. What counts is that under the compulsions of necessity a practical sort of bipartisanship has been devised on the highway issue. In the coming political campaign, that aspect will be thoroughly cloaked in harangue. But the reality of useful compromise, so often evident beneath this disguise, will be there just the same.

There was a good reason why Eisenhower held up his second re-ply to Premier Bulganin on a U. S. Soviet friendship pact after firing the first reply back in Bulganin's teeth. He found he had fallen into a Soviet trap.

hower had not been so hasty in slapping down the first Bulganin note. If he had waited a day or two to consult with Prime Min-ister Eden, he could have let Eden share responsibility for his slap-down. Or he could have waited longer to appear to give the matter more careful study.

That was why he waited longer to answer the second Bulganin note which the Kremlin, having scored in the first round for peace propaganda, fired back at Ike so

IKE'S SUCCESS AT GENEVA One of the most effective things Eisenhower did at Geneva, in the opinion of this observer, who was there, was to convince the people of France, Italy, Germany, Greece, et al, that the United States genuinely wants peace. Eisenhower played his cards perfectly, cut the ground out from under Moscow's continual claim that the U. S. wants war.

But today as a result of Bulganin's fast foot-work and the Dulles - Eisenhower eager - beaver rush into his trap, part of Ike's fine work at Geneva has been Senator Lyndon Johnson says: "My doctor wants me to get off the digitalis." He's going back to Texas for a rest . . . Unfortunate fact is that after returning for the opening of Con-gress in January, Lyndon spent about two weeks in Florida and Cuba, now is going back to Texas for another two weeks. And Lyndon is almost 20 years younger than Eisenhower . . . The appointment of ex-Congressman O. K. Armstrong of Missouri as a commissioner to investigate the morals of Indians, shows how slipshod Doug McKay is in running the Interior Department. He didn't know that Armstrong had been convicted of income tax evasion. McKay fired the alert, career public servants from the Interior Department, so has no one left to protect him . . . Under the Old Curmudgeon, Harold Ickes, and his protege, Oscar Chapman, the Interior Department had developed the best eagle-eyed protectors of the national domain I have ever seen in Washington. But they've been scattered to the four winds.

Newspaper Helpful to Pedestrian in Dark

BOSTON - IF - Your news paper may save your life when you're walking home after dark some winter evening, says an American Automobile Association official.

"Wear white after dark" has long been the slogan of safety organizations throughout the country, explained Robert S. Kret-schmar, executive secretary of the Massachusetts division of the

"It's not always possible to wear white clothing at night," he said, "but your white newspaper will help. When you walk across a highway or near moving automobiles at night, carry your news-paper so the car headlights will reflect upon it. This is particularly important if you're walking along ar open highway or country road."

church met recently. The program theme was "Know the Indian better" with worship theme, "Love for our Fellow Man." under the direction of Mrs.

Sylvia Fowler, teacher. The meeting was opened with the hymn "Send the Light" fol-lowed by prayer by Ruby Wallace. Devotional scriptures were read by Mrs. Ollie Ferrell from Exodus 20 chapter 12 to 17 verses. Mrs. Fowler had prepared a chart showing a Love Circle of how our heart should radiate love for family, value of life, purity of heart, honest, truthfulness and to be able to rejoice with others in good fortune. Several of the members present gave scripture readings and commandments on love. At the business meeting which followed it was voted to have the mite box opened at the next meet-ing on March 14.

All members are urged to attend the World Day of Prayer Friday night at the Presbyterian church. Those present besides those mentioned above were Eunice Black, Ola Maszaros, Geraldine Ewell, Myrtie Shewmaker, Dena Ellis, Cora Church, and Blanche Yuhas.

Illinois Routs Michigan, 89-66; Iowa Keeps Pace; Spartans, Hoosiers Upset

The Illini breezed to their eighth straight conference triumph by routing Michigan, 89-66, and Iowa kept pace by waltzing past third-place Purdue, 88-75.

Illinois faces the toughest task this Saturday when it travels to Michigan State in the afternoon television game. Iowa plays upsetminded Wisconsin, but the Hawks have the advantage of playing on their home floor in Iowa City while Illinois must tackle the Spartans and Julius McCoy in East Lansing.

CHICAGO (P—Two upsets added a little spice to Monday night's Big Ten program, but neither Illi-tle race Monday night when Minnenois nor Iowa were involved in sota staged a 77-73 upset in Minnea-polis, avenging an earlier 80-69 lose to the Spartans. Wisconsin Whips Hoosiers The loss was Michigan State's fourth against four wins. Spartan Coach Forddy Anderson thought his team was still in the running with three defeats, but after Monday night he should be willing to join the ranks and admit that this year's race is strictly a two-team

Wisconsin staged the other ambush, nipping Indiana, 69-67, on the Hoosiers' home floor.

Dick Miller, the Big Ten's third leading scorer, and John Parker led the Badgers to their third win in nine games. Miller potted 22 points to maintain his 21.9 average and Parker hit 11 of his 15 points in the second half to help overcome Indiana's 33-30 halftime lead. Robin Freeman was his usual self and led Ohio State to a 83-72 victory over Northwestern, the Wildcats' ninth straight defeat. Freeman, after being held to 12 points by Illinois Saturday, hit 10 of 20 attempts from the field and 8 of 10 free throws for 28 points. He now leads McCoy in their in-dividual scoring race, 31.1 to 29.5. Kramer is High Man Illinois used 13 players and Harry Combes substituted freely in stopping Michigan. George Bon-Salle, 6-8 center, and little 5-9 Bill Ridley each popped in 25 points, but Ron Kramer took scoring honors with 26.

Purdue outshot Iowa from the field, .529 to .403, but the Hawks' close man-to-man defense allowed the Boilermakers only 50 shots. Iowa hit 31 of 77 while Purdue connected on 26 of 50.

The Boilermakers made a game of it in the first half, leading at one time, 20-13, but after the score was tied, 28-28, Iowa's defending champs pulled steadily in front and led at the intermission, 46-34.

Two other conference games are on tap Saturday. Michigan hosts Indiana and Minnesota travels to Ohio State. Purdue goes to Notre Dame Saturday after playing the Irish tonight at Lafayette.

Elmer Gibbons Seeks Re-Election As County Coroner

Elmer M. Gibbons, who has served as Coroner of Saline county for the past three years, announces today that he will seek re-election to this important office, subject to the Republican primary election April 10. In his formal announcement he makes the following statement:

"In submitting my candidacy to the voters for their consideration I sincerely believe my record of service to Saline county as Coroner during the past three years will bear the closest inspection. Almost two hundred cases of every kind a Coroner deals with have been given my personal at-tention, and it is with real satis-faction I can say I have had the fullest cooperation from all the doctors and funeral directors of this county. "This office should not be considered lightly, but it is vital to every citizen that the Coroner give it his serious attention. For the past fifteen months I have devoted my entire time to the duties of this important office, and will continue to do so if I am nominated and elected.

"I have given sympathetic and honest attention to all of the cases coming before me and I invite complete investigation of my qualifications for the office. These qualifications are recorded in my record as a citizen, a past city of ficial, and my record during the years I have served as Coroner.

'In seeking re-nomination and election I would like to state that I have been a resident of Saline county all of my life, where I also reared my family. Until the last fifteen months I had worked for several years at my profession of barbering. I have been elected and served you as a City Commissioner of Harrisburg, and for over twenty years I have been an active member of the McKinley Avenue Baptist church.

"Time will not permit me to personally contact every voter before the Primary election, but I urge you to weigh my experience and the fact that I will devote my full time to the office in determining your selection for this high and responsible office.

As the group was about to leave the cottage of Miss Mills, Billy, who had been quietly looking and thinking, said: "Let's have prayer." He began to pray, in a choked tone that sounded nothing like the confident voice of Billy Graham: "Our Father and our God, we feel that we are on holy ground. We feel that we are not even worthy of being here." His voice broke and there was silence for about 30 seconds.

He said, "You pray, John." (he was speaking to John Bolten, a Christian businessman from Andover, "Mass., who is accompanying him on the tour).
